This directory is a result of a survey which was disseminated to artists and cultural resources. It is our hope that future printings will be filled with even more names and contacts of those who preserve and create. Our goal is to identify and list as many resources as possible, and to make this information available to the public so that those who work in the areas of art and culture can benefit through increased visibility.

Please use this publication, and contact OHA's Culture Office by calling (808) 594-1888 if you wish to receive a survey form for inclusion in future updates of Ola Nā Iwi, or if you'd like to be a part of OHA's computer database of Hawaiian artists and cultural resources.

'O au iho nō me ka ha'aha'a,

Clayton H.W. Hee

Aloha mai,

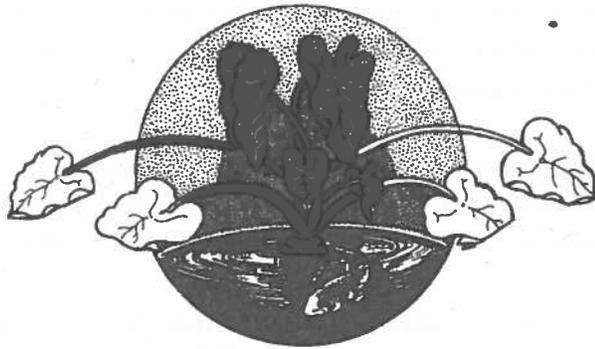

As Hawaiians, we are taught, "E ola ana nā kūpuna i loko o nā mamo," that "Our ancestors live on through their descendants." It is with this thought that we acknowledge the practices of our kūpuna as well as the contemporary artistic expressions of today's generations with this first printing of Ola Nā Iwi. It is OHA's ongoing commitment to seek, identify and lend support to the numerous individuals and groups whose efforts preserve and enhance our Hawaiian culture.

We hope to increase this listing of cultural practitioners and Hawaiian artists, and look to you, our beneficiaries, to help us in this effort, so that future editions of Ola Nā Iwi will be filled with as many resources as possible. Ola Nā Iwi is for the good of our lāhui, and will inspire continued creativity and expression for future generations.

Mālama pono,

Samuel L. Kealoha, Jr., Chairman
Education and Culture Committee

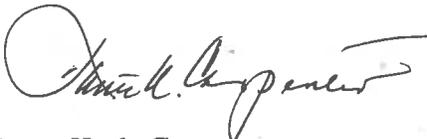

'Ano'ai me ke aloha,

On behalf of the staff and administration of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA), we enthusiastically introduce Ola Nā Iwi. It is our culture that defines us as a people, that which makes us unique and special. This collection of cultural resources and artists is a testament to the skill, talent and creativity found throughout the Hawaiian community.

This flagship publication includes names of our contemporaries who practice their culture and express themselves artistically in such areas as Hawaiian language, hula, lei making, lau hala weaving, oli, and contemporary media such as photography, ceramics, sculpture and painting.

We hope that we will have the opportunity to continue this project in the future so that all those involved with our arts and culture may be included. This conglomeration of published resources from throughout Hawai'i will most certainly add to the unifying endeavors and heightened cultural identity of our people. This, we feel, is critical as we seek self-determination.

Me ka mahalo nui,

Dante Keala Carpenter
Administrator
